Alberta Domestic and Steam Coal Operators have called on the government to repay the money borrowed with all arrears of interest.

NO REPLY
In reply to the government's statement for the $2,500,000 derived from the trust funds of the Workmen's Compensation Act, without the consent of the widows, orphans and injured men who are the beneficiaries under the trusteeship, giving as security for the money borrowed bonds of the province under which they undertook to repay the amounts borrowed on certain dates with interest at agreed rates, but that the government is now refusing to pay more than a portion of the interest which it promised to pay, and "the Compensation Board is said to be now without sufficient monies to meet the claims of these injured workmen and their dependents." Alberta Domestic and Steam Coal Operators have called on the government to repay the money borrowed with all arrears of interest.

The reduction setting forth the stand of the coal operators states that they are in full sympathy with the principle of providing fairly for those who have suffered while endeavoring to mine, they consider that all funds entrusted to the government for the purpose should be strictly protected and applied to the purpose for which they were raised.

Whiskers May Identify Cruel Mattson Slayer

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 19.—Eye-witnesses of the Charles Mattson kidnapping will confront ex-convict Leigh Gustafson, 36, now that he has been compelled to grow a beard, it was learned today from an unimpeachable source. This was disclosed as U. S. Federal Bureau of Investigation agents finished questioning Fowler for the third time at Billingham, Washington.

The meeting of Fowler and the witnesses—two older Mattson children and a child visitor saw the seizure—will take place, it was reported, when he is taken from his solitary confinement cell within the next few days to the state penitentiary at Walla Walla. There he will serve 20 years for a holdup December 17, in Billingham.

Although Fowler has asked permission to shave, Sheriff W. T. Farmer has refused. The sheriff said he acted on instructions of federal agents.

The kidnapping of 10-year-old Charles had a dark hood.

One of the most widely discussed clues—an automobile stolen in Everett Jan. 8 and abandoned there the day Charles' body was found—was released by authorities to an insurance company.

At Culver City, Calif., Joseph Mitchell, informant, was released after questioning.

Whiskers May Identify Cruel Mattson Slayer

THE bondholders' offer to the City of Calgary to re-finance its funded debt in a new scheme to cover the most 25 years with an interest rate of 4 1/2 per cent, has met with a chilly reception, according to press reports from that city.

The bondholders have failed utterly in fairness, equity, or even in their own selfish interests, during the past six years, in not meeting the tragic conditions of the debtors, particularly of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Outrageous offers of 8, 9, 10 and even 12 per cent was charged the western prairie farmer and home-owner up to 1930. The depression and collapse of agricultural world prices (the worst in 2,000 years) left the debtors hopelessly bankrupt. Equities in farms and houses were wiped out. The cities and provinces dependent absolutely and entirely on the farmers' prosperity for their own solvency, slid into the same state of bankruptcy.

The Federal government from 1930 to 1935 imposed in addition a ruinous, vicious, dishonest "Sound Money" policy to make a hopeless condition worse, if that was possible.

Neither the farmer, home-owner, city or province can possibly pay the debt burden piled up in the years prior to 1930 and promulgated since by interest rates that have no relation to production or earnings. The result—the Federal Government, to maintain a farming population at all in the three prairie provinces, was compelled to bring into being the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act to cut debt and interest rates to a payable basis.

Nothing was done for making public debts payable, with the exception of action of the Alberta Government in September, 1935. The legislation for the benefit of Alberta cities and municipalities in reducing all interest on funded debt to three per cent effective as from September 1st, 1935, however, has not been proclaimed by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, pending the outcome of negotiations by the bondholders with the cities of Calgary and Edmonton for a voluntary reduction in interest rates.

The bondholders' offer to Calgary is worse than nothing, and a similar proposal is made to Edmonton. It should be rejected by the Mayor, City Commissioners and council unanimously without hesitation or a moment's delay, with an immediate request to Premier Aberhart to make effective the law passed by the legislature in September last.

With the city owning hundreds of homes and business properties, confiscated by ruinous taxation, and thousands of other homes under caveat, the taxpayers have a right to protection NOW of their homes and property.

The Mayor and every member of the City Council pledged himself before election to a maximum rate of 3 per cent either by negotiation with the bondholders or, if necessary, through the provincial law.

HEARS OF THE ALARM, SOCIETY DECLARES

Mr. Bennett said the present year's revenue had not started from "zero." Revenue increased during the current fiscal year, and was largely due to the increased sales tax and to the tax on incomes earned in 1935.

With respect to the wheat board, Mr. Bennett asked "what power has the government-in-council to change a statute unless that power is in the statute itself?"

The statistic had said a fixed minimum price should be established at which farmers could sell their wheat to the board. The government had "imposed a condition for which it had no authority."

On the government's handling of the wheat situation, Mr. Bennett reviewed the course of prices and supplies since the government took office, and asked "would any intelligent body of shareholders accept such a statement from its director?"

BRITISH TREATY

Mr. Bennett said it was unusual practice to refer to the signing of the trade treaty with the United Kingdom "in principle" when details were not furnished.

Referring to the United States wheat situation, Mr. Bennett said there had been no difference of view except as to the danger of disarranging the wheat situation. The former government had tried to create a wheat market in Canada by making it a Canadian business.

The treaty had increased circulation of these magazines in Canada by 100,000 copies a month.

"We are not equipped even to meet reality," said Mr. Bennett referring to the absence of revenue in the wheat situation.

The speech from the Throne, Mr. Bennett said, was a "wonderful" document, and the house would want to express a statement from Mr. Bennett, minister of national defence.

GOLD CLAUSE
The proposal to remove the gold clause from the contract for the purchase of the most dangerous pieces of legislation forecast in the speech, Mr. Bennett said.

Increasing in number and weight, the proposals were being made on democratic government, and Mr. Bennett said.

Compulsory voting, he said, was not to be considered, but particularly, the governments would have to think of the well-being of the people, regardless of the immediate political fortunes of any group or party.

Enactment of the trade agreement with Japan and the trade of trade relations with Russia had been substantially to increase and improved international relations, Mr. Bennett said.

ONLY TALK
"For years my right honorable friend has been talking about removing barriers against trade and commerce," Mr. Bennett said.

"But I have never known any administration and would not have come if it had been retained."

Mr. Bennett said the government was to remove barriers against trade and commerce, and further steps were presented to this parliament, including the new Canadian trade agreements.

Referring to the wheat board, Mr. Bennett said the government had not authorized to fix a price, but the application of a fixed price had been assured it could proceed with full statutory authority.

In closing, the Prime Minister discussed unemployment, which was not decreasing in proportion to the increase in the numbers being employed. He concluded by saying the House legislation and measures he said would come down later in the session.

BLACKMORE SPEAKS
John H. Blackmore, leader of the Social Credit party, today made a statement to the House in connection with a discussion of the unemployment relief bill.

Mr. Blackmore said the bill would not be solved by any methods for the relief. The administration would not have come if it had been retained.

The administration was entitled to some credit, but Mr. Blackmore said the House should not be misled by the results of the bill, but was not sure because of conditions in other countries.

Mr. Blackmore said the bill was not a course would mean inflation. He was convinced, however, he would find sufficient protection in the bill to protect the value of the money.

Mr. Blackmore said the bill could be placed in the hands of a body of officials independent of the government, and that such a body would be able to handle the situation.

F.D.R. Turns Down Bid To Own Inaugural—But It's All In Fun

FOUR RECENT ROOSEVELT CANDID CAMERA CLOSE-UPS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Franklin D. Roosevelt's fellow citizens, smiling more broadly than they did four years ago, called today to salute him at the start of a second administration which promises to write a history like the fourth-highest first term.

His numbers increased hourly despite a forecast of rain and colder weather when the president today, after a brief ceremony, turned out to "preserve, protect and defend" the United States constitution.

It happened this way: The special committee on inauguration arrangements and his own year ago a sovereign inauguration ceremony.

"The house of your presence is here," Mr. Roosevelt said, "and I am glad to see you here at the inauguration of the President of the United States today."

He was in a corner with this note: "Heaven preserve the elected card of admission."

The card, however, was missing. Upon reaching the inauguration hall, the President smiled, and said: "I am glad to see you here at the inauguration of the President of the United States today."

"Please regard this invitation, I will be too busy," Mr. Roosevelt said.

Rockwell, chief of the White House, said: "I am glad to see you here at the inauguration of the President of the United States today."

Donnes, Dafe To Face Suit In U.S. For Million

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—Federal Judge John P. Barnes denied a motion to dismiss a $1,000,000 damage suit against Mr. and Mrs. Olive Donnes, parents of the famous quack, Dr. Allen R. Dafe.

Ivan I. Spear, Chicago promoter brought the suit, alleging breach of contract. Spear contended he had contracted for the exclusive right to publicize the quack's claims.

"In Alberta," Mr. Blackmore said, "our relief costs are increasing."

Western provinces had suffered more in the depression than other parts of the country, he said.

"Tariiffs increased had cost the western provinces millions because of the wide divergence between the added cost of goods bought as compared to the benefit derived from the tariff protection."

In Quebec and Ontario the benefits of tariff protection had been added cost of goods bought as compared to the benefit derived from the tariff protection.

DIRECT RELIEF ABOLITION IS MEMBER'S AIM

State Supported Charity Denounced in Reply To Throne Speech

OTTAWA, Jan. 19.—Complete abolition of direct unemployment relief was urged in the House of Commons today by Dr. C. J. Venn, new Liberal member for Gloucester, as he introduced the address in reply to the speech from the Throne.

Citing recent activities in his home town of Bathurst and in the Northwest generally by the cutting down of relief payments, Dr. Venn suggested the test of Canada would accept a similar policy.

"Direct relief was the greatest economic error of the century," he said, "and it was necessary to a temporary measure at the start of the depression."

"His contention," he said, "is a 'state-subsidized' form of charity, as the abolition of direct relief, which would be necessary to a temporary measure at the start of the depression."

Looking Them Over

Lean Years

WHEN we went to bed last night about ten days ago on the matter of a Dominion government department of sport as suggested by Hugh Flaxton, M.P., and then went on with a proposal that the Dominion appropriate a definite and respectable sum each year under its public works program for the building of permanent sport facilities, we apparently consented for a two-bagger at least. With some more timely hitting it may be made into a score yet. Letters endorsing the suggestion have come in from many points in Alberta, Edmontonians have telephoned their support of the idea, and letters have been sent from Regina and Vancouver giving enthusiastic endorsement.

One suggestion advanced by several is that before the Flaxton resolution of sport goes before the House of Commons, all sport writers from coast to coast should join in putting on the best. The idea would certainly help a lot, but whether or not the sport writing fraternity agree with the idea is a point on which few, if any, have yet committed themselves.

Judging from the response coming to this column, it seems that the suggestion that permanent sport facilities such as arenas, clubs, playing fields and swimming pools be made part of the public works program proved much more popular than the bare proposal to set up a Dominion department of sport, with no very definite plan of action. There seems to be a definite aversion to the government making any move to control sport unless it is prepared to give something in return for this control.

Poverty Chief Cause of Grief

Taken on the whole, Canadian sport is well governed today, of course from time to time squabbles develop—but even the Dominion government has such upsurges in its own ranks once in awhile. Give sport financial security, not that it is, but simply enough to maintain first class competition without going into the red, and these squabbles and bickerings will be practically eliminated. Off hand I can't name a single sport in which there is not some squabble at the very bottom of it all. Even the trouble about imported U.S. football players was a matter of money in the final analysis. The west figures it has to have these players to make paying schedules possible.

The members of the House of Commons will undoubtedly want to know how much financial security can be assured sport without opening the state coffers to a constant drain. I do not believe that this security can be absolutely assured by any single stroke of the government's pen, but I feel sure that the greater part of financial insecurity can be eliminated by providing sport with adequate facilities.

A couple of weeks ago, this column invited Edmonton hockey fans to help discover why the attendance here was so discouraging. A pile of answers came in. One of them did not like the refereeing, several were more concerned about our last hockey players to Calgary who no jobs could be found for them here, a few more were disgusted with the performances our teams turned in when they travelled. However, so far as the great majority were concerned, they were just fed up with travelling miles out to the arena and then shivering there through the game. As one fan put it: "I like my sport, but I'll be hanged if I am going to suffer to see it."

Another fan explained a point that has been bothering hockey officials. "I know we used to swarm out to the arena in thousands in the old days, but now we don't like the refereeing, several were more concerned about our last hockey players to Calgary who no jobs could be found for them here, a few more were disgusted with the performances our teams turned in when they travelled. However, so far as the great majority were concerned, they were just fed up with travelling miles out to the arena and then shivering there through the game. As one fan put it: "I like my sport, but I'll be hanged if I am going to suffer to see it."

Lean Years for Hockey

FROM the above survey of the field findings, it seems reasonable to contend that our hockey in Edmonton is facing lean years of financial crisis unless we get a modern arena in a central section of the city. The initial cost of such a plant appears to be too big to be paid off by sport without putting it under a greater burden than at present. This eliminates private capital. In its present financial position the city simply can not do the building. Two resources remain open, the provincial government and Dominion.

Each of these governments has heavy responsibilities already, but the physical and mental welfare of their people are nevertheless major concerns. In addition, funds for such urgently needed buildings can be found by a little judicious use of regular expenditures and this can be done without hurting anyone.

To begin with, the province of Alberta has repaid many thousands of dollars in tax from professional sport and never put one cent back into sport. Nothing else is taxed without getting something in return. Then, the provincial and Dominion governments have been generous in relief. Much of this is going to men who are skilled workers, and they need not be put to work at unskilled work on public buildings, working enough days each month to at least earn what is being given them for relief. This would take care of the labor costs, roughly 30 or 35 per cent of the total cost of a building. Careful consideration of public works programs, particularly those of the Dominion, would show many projects that could be shelved for a few years while provisions were made to ensure Canada's young becoming healthy, virile men and women with sane minds.

Chief Shute of the City Police has spent a lifetime riding herd on criminals and it has made him an enthusiastic supporter of sport. "I never knew of a boy who was taught to play the game fair in sport who ever went seriously wrong. It is the boys who don't get a chance to go in for sport that go wrong. They get hanging around the wrong places and they get wrong ideas. Many of them can't go in for sport because they people have enough money to get them equipment," the chief told me over the weekend and was told recently. "If a plan could be worked out to give every boy and girl plenty of sport facilities free of cost, it would just about solve our juvenile crime problem." Every experienced police head on the continent will agree with Chief Shute.

Not to put the Dominion help plan across requires more than merely agreeing to it. Take ten minutes out and write a letter to your member at Ottawa telling him what you want. Any member that gets a hundred letters asking for action along a certain line will give it some serious thought. A second letter to Hugh Flaxton, M.P., would strengthen his hand when he brings down his resolution in the House. Just address letters in care of the House of Commons, Ottawa. Write now and help put it over. It's up to you.

International Hockey Series Seems Assured

Canadian Teams Also Get Chance to Earn Trip to Coronation

OTTAWA, Jan. 10.—President Cecil Duncan of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association said last night that the proposed international amateur hockey playoff series this year between the United States, Great Britain and Canada were practically arranged. He said preliminary survey plans have gone along so well that it seemed assured the British National League champions will come to Canada to play an international championship series with the winners of the North American series between the Canadian and United States.

PUT IN RIDS

Site for this final series has not been determined, but Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa interests have already put in bids. Final decision will rest with the C.A.H.A. executive.

According to present plans, the Allan cup playoffs will proceed as in other years.

As the playoffs go ahead, based on provincial finals will enter in April to take place in the coronation series in London, England.

The C.A.H.A. also plans to send this year's winners of the Allan cup on an overseas tour in the winter of 1957-58.

This clever boxer from Winnipeg, Man., is going great guns on his United States Tour. He is Billy "The Kid" Marquart, former Olympic snow fighter, who turned professional in 1951.

His seven encounters Billy has won every one. His record shows four knock-outs and three decisions. Marquart is pictured in a fighting pose.

Canadian Teams Also Get Chance to Earn Trip to Coronation

OTTAWA, Jan. 10.—President Cecil Duncan of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association said last night that the proposed international amateur hockey playoff series this year between the United States, Great Britain and Canada were practically arranged. He said preliminary survey plans have gone along so well that it seemed assured the British National League champions will come to Canada to play an international championship series with the winners of the North American series between the Canadian and United States.

PUT IN RIDS

Site for this final series has not been determined, but Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa interests have already put in bids. Final decision will rest with the C.A.H.A. executive.

According to present plans, the Allan cup playoffs will proceed as in other years.

As the playoffs go ahead, based on provincial finals will enter in April to take place in the coronation series in London, England.

The C.A.H.A. also plans to send this year's winners of the Allan cup on an overseas tour in the winter of 1957-58.

This clever boxer from Winnipeg, Man., is going great guns on his United States Tour. He is Billy "The Kid" Marquart, former Olympic snow fighter, who turned professional in 1951.

His seven encounters Billy has won every one. His record shows four knock-outs and three decisions. Marquart is pictured in a fighting pose.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Queen Elizabeth won't have to attend to paying the butcher and the laundryman when she moves into Buckingham Palace, but she will be confronted with a tremendous house-keeping problem.

A master of the household will take over most of the domestic work. The Queen has handled in the comparatively modest residence and the King occupy at 145 Piccadilly.

HUNDREDS OF ROOMS
But in the vast palace of hundreds of rooms, she will be busy for many weeks getting settled. Buckingham Palace is a vast and intricate labyrinth of corridors, waiting and directing alterations in the Royal apartments.

King George and Queen Elizabeth plan to move within a few weeks. When they do, the Duke and Duchess of Kent—the Duke is the sovereign's youngest brother—will follow them into 145 Piccadilly.

The present home of the Kents at 2 Belgrave Square, has proved too small for his enlarged staff and some of the household staff have had to be accommodated in other buildings.

GLOUCESTER TO MOVE
The Duke and Duchess of Gloucester also probably will move shortly. The Duke has decided to give up the castle he and his wife have occupied at Buckingham Palace, going to York House, the residence of the ailing Duke of Devonshire, who is Prince of Wales.

One of Queen Elizabeth's first tasks when she will be the selection of the new royal household. The Duke and Duchess of Kent, her two daughters.

Then she will face staff problems. At 145 Piccadilly, there were only 10 servants, including two butlers and a gardener.

Buckingham Palace has 150 servants, besides court officials, ladies-in-waiting and secretaries.

In addition to the state apartments—such as the throne room, the royal chapel, the dining room, the silk tapestry room, the state ball and supper rooms, and the blue, white and gold drawing room—there are dozens of private apartments and rooms devoted to members of the royal household.

The actual suite to be occupied by the King and Queen remains undetermined, but it is expected that the King's late father and Queen Mary will occupy it.

LIKES COOKING
The new mistress did not wish to live in the grand old English suite which Edward used, but she liked his brief stay in the palace.

The Queen is fond of cooking. Friends say she may occasionally entertain her guests in the royal kitchen and skip into the royal kitchen to bake cakes.
